A Dangerous Law Suit

It is ironic, but not altogether surprising, that the legal attack launched against the Hatch Act on April 18 in Washington, D.C., posing a dangerous threat to the civil liberties of all American voters and taxpayers, was initiated by the group calling itself the American "Civil Liberties" Union.

There can be no question but that the suit filed against the longstanding Corrupt Practices laws, which restrict and regulate the political activities of persons on the government payroll, has the potential of consolidating, once and for all, the supremacy of federal bureaucratic control over every individual in the United States. The reality of this danger cannot be overstated.

It must be remembered that when the measure was first passed during the early days of the "New Deal", our government was just beginning to build the massive bureaucracy which we have today. Even then, however, the dangerous potential of power in the hands of "Non-elected rules" was recognized. The "Corrupt Practices Act"—as it was then called—was enacted not only to restrict self-serving, power-building political campaigning by government employees; it also banned the solicitation of political contributions by one employee from another. Congress specifically acted to out-law the "pernicious practice" of political appointees from pressuring government workers under their supervision to make campaign contributions to their political patrons, in what amounted to a shakedown. Should the Hatch Act be removed, and with the numbers of workers on the federal payrolls today, the awsome power of entrenched bureaucrats would be multiplied many times.

It is not surprising, either, that plaintiffs joining the American Civil Liberties Union include a Democratic Committee in the District and a Republican Committee in Montgomery County. With more than 300,000 well paid government workers in the Washington area, the financial plum to be realized from "pay-off or else" solicitation is enormous. Even if a "modest" $1,000 per worker were to be demanded (the Hatch Act now restricts political contributions to $5,000 from any one person) one can easily calculate the campaign kitty that could be realized. How in the world would the folks back home be able to raise campaign funds for an opposition candidate, regardless of political label, to displace an entrenched politician in office in Washington?

Not only to protect government employees from coercive practices, but to safeguard free and fair competition between the "ins" and the "outs" in political control, the Hatch Act should be retained.—Crossett News Observer

Texarkana Gets Plant

TEXARKANA, Ark. (AP) — Glode-Union Inc., a Milwaukee, Wis., firm, announced Tuesday that a $3 million plant for production of thin-walled plastic battery containers and covers will be located at Texarkana.

The plant will employ about 80 persons when production starts this fall, but the work force will be expanded to about 100 during the next two years, officials said.

HOT SPRINGS, Ark. (AP) — Albert L. Ward, 25, of Blakely (Garland County) was killed Tuesday when the car he was driving left Arkansas 5 north of Hot Springs at a high rate of speed and crashed into a tree.

Byrd Demands Boggs Prove His Charge

By JIM ADAMS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia, the Senate's No. 2 Democrat, called today on House Democratic Leader Hale Boggs of Louisiana to reveal immediately the basis for his charge the FBI has tapped his and other congressional telephones.

Noting such charges and suspicions have been voiced from time to time, Byrd told reporters, "I think there is a good bit of imagination involved."

If Boggs has proof, Byrd said, "it should be revealed and soon."

Byrd said he has never heard of any Senate telephone being tapped by the FBI and said a check he made a month ago of this showed nothing.

But Boggs, in spite of vigorous denials by the White House and the Justice Department, says there is no doubt the FBI tapped his telephone.

He adds that several Houe members have given him detailed information on similar experiences.

The Louisiana Democrat told newsmen Tuesday he knows what the FBI planned to do with information overheard on his telephone. But Boggs refused to elaborate.

He said he has laywers investigating the information and will release it "in the near future" after they have documented it.

Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell has denied the FBI ever tapped any congressman's phone. Presidential press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler pointed to Mitchell's statement and added in response to questions that the President does not condone wiretapping of congressmen.

But Boggs said: "I categorically say it's true. Any number of members of Congress have come to me and told me in their firm judgment their phones were tapped," the Democratic leader said. "This is very difficult to prove because you need the FBI to prove it."

Boggs again called for Hoover's immediate resignation for "the good of the FBI more than anything else."

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield said he has no knowledge of any FBI wiretapping of a senator.

Found Guilty of Burglary

Tuesday in Hempstead Circuit Court a jury found Herman Seals guilty of burglary and grand larceny and fixed his sentence at two years for burglary and one year on the grand larceny count. Judge John Goodson will formerly pronounce sentence next week.

Appeal cases were being heard by the Court Wednesday.

Even Critics of Railpax Are at Odds

WASHINGTON (AP) — Even critics of the infant Railpax are at odds: Should they starve it financially before it starts on its own course, or feed it more millions and tell it where to run for its money?

Conceived by Congress last year as a profit-making quasi-government corporation to save passenger train service, Railpax begins life May 1 with a $40 million federal grant plus guaranteed loan capability of up to $300 million.

Sources calculate Railpax will have spent $4 million of that federal grant by the time it begins operating.

But the system, while spanning 114 major cities, bypasses six states and the nation's 12th largest city, Cleveland. It extends just single lines into several other states.

One of those one-liners will be Montana, home of Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, who told the Senate Appropriations subcommittee on transportation Tuesday: "We were misled."

"If Railpax isn't interested in starting off on the right foot," Mansfield said, "perhaps it would be best to withdraw all funds already appropriated, so that the National Railroad Passenger Corp. will not be able to operate after May 1."

Meanwhile, Sen. Robert Taft Jr., R-Ohio, who ciriticized Railpax for leaving a northern Ohio corridor from its planned route, announced he will seek legislation providing $250 million for intercity service and specifically adding Cleveland, Toledo, Youngstown and Akron to the network.

And in the House, a bipartisan group of 22 congressmen from Ohio, New York, New Jersey, Connecticut, California, Colorado and Idaho introduced a plan for an additional $290 million authorization for Railpax.

Every Wife Knows That Nothing Changes a Man Like Marriage

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — As every wife knows, nothing changes a man like marriage.

Through a long marital life of blisses and hisses, she intermittently broods over what caused those changes in her homespun hero.

When she first met him he had hair as wavy as a wind-tormented sea. Now he has so few straggley hairs left they'd hardly provide hiding space for an anemic flea.

Once he was so handsome she liked to chuck him under the chin just to make him laugh. When she tries that now, however, she doesn't know which of his chins to chuck first.

When he was courting her, he loved to exchange confidences with her. What do they do today? Why, they trade silences.

In the old days when she was single and they didn't have a date every night, she worried for fear that he was out with another girl. Not anymore. If he isn't home on time for his first evening Martini, she knows where he probably is. He is working late at the office, chasing his homely secretary around her desk.

There was a time when she wouldn't think of giving him up for anything in the wide, wide world. But that was before he became so much trouble to her that she began to consider taking him to a hardware store and turn him in as a down payment on a used snow shovel.

"How many children do you want?" She asked. "At least three," he answers. And ever since she gave him four, he has been saying sarcastically, "Don't you even know how to count? Don't you ever know when to quit?"

She remembers when he told her she could have anything she wanted—the sun, the moon, the stars—anything. "Just tell me, and I'll get it for you," he said. But today he snarls if she even asks for a new dust collection bag for her vacuum cleaner.

During their courtship he begged her to tell him of any flaw she found in him so he could correct it and make himself more pleasing to her. But what happens today if she even mildly hints that he is less than perfect? "Get off my back," he growls. "I asked you to marry me, not harry me."

Yes, every wife wonders what made her husband change so, and suspects it is her fault.

But usually it isn't at all.

The real cause is probably marriage itself. Marriage is an institution, and everybody who enters and dwells in an institution is bound to be changed somewhat.

Next: How marriage changes women.

3 Radicals Elected in Berkeley

By DOUG WILLIS
Associated Press Writer

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — Radicals won three of four contested City Council seats in Tuesday's election but failed in a bid to take control of the council. Voters also put into office a black mayor who supports the radicals.

A radical-backed proposal to split the Police Department into three departments controlled by councils in black, white and student neighborhoods was overwhelmingly rejected.

The City Council now will have a 4-4 radical-moderate makeup. A ninth seat is vacant. It was occupied by Warren Widener, who resigned to run successfully for mayor, the first black man to hold that office. The new council will elect his successor.

"The people of this city have decided it's not going to be business as usual anymore. The city said we want change and we will have change," said Ira T. Simmons, 28, a black attorney and one of three new self-styled radical councilmen.

One of the radicals' first objectives will be an effort to bring the Police Department under greater community control, despite the defeat of such a measure in Tuesday's election.

Edward Kallgren, a white attorney, was the top vote-getter among the 33 candidates for the 4 council seats. He describes himself as an independent liberal.

Daley Easy Winner in Chicago

By RICHARD CICCONE
Associated Press Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — Richard J. Daley, the nation's most successful big city organization politician, has been elected to a fifth term as Chicago's mayor by a huge margin. He pulled in 70 per cent of the votes and won 48 of the city's 50 wards.

The 68-year-old Democratic power said in a Tuesday night victory speech. "The overwhelming vote was a mandate to us to make Chicago a better city for all the people."

Like a gunfighter in the Old West, Daley takes them all on and comes up a winner.

This time it was Republican Richard E. Friedman, 41, a bachelor who switched political allegiance from the Democratic ranks and ran as tough a campaign as Daley has seen in 16-year reign at City Hall.

After the votes were counted, Friedman expressed pride in the campaign he had waged and said, "We made some waves today, and they're going to be hitting shore."

Friedman had said he would win by 50,000 votes.

The final count after Tuesday's voting—the lightest in a Chicago mayoral election in 36 years—showed Daley won by a margin of 735,787 to 318,059.

In 1967, when he won by a half million votes over John Waner, Daley carried all 50 wards in this city of 3.4 million.

The two wards the mayor failed to carry Tuesday were the 5th, in the Hyde Park neighborhood of the South Side, and the 43rd, a predominantly white area on the Near North Side. Both wards are represented by independent Democrats on the City Council.

Daley's victory about making Chicago a better city for all the people echoed the keynote of his campaign. Friedman had charged that Daley was out of touch with the people.

With Tuesday's victory, Daley became the third man to win five Chicago mayoral elections. But the others—19th century politicians—won only two-year terms and they were not in succession.

Nixon Will Announce New, Likely Quicker Pace of Withdrawal

By LEE BYRD
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new and likely quicker pace of troop withdrawals from Vietnam will be announced by President Nixon tonight in a speech he has said "will give some indication as to the end" of America's longest war.

The President secluded himself with staff members, as he did Tuesday, to prepare the 9 p.m. EST television-radio address. There were few indications as to precisely what it would unfold.

But speculation from respected quarters centered on a pull-out rate which would exceed the current schedule of 12,500 monthly, perhaps by as much as 50 per cent.

A year ago, the President decided barely three hours before a similar speech to withdraw some 150,000 troops by May 1 of this year, leaving the number of Americans still there on that date at 284,000.

The White House says that schedule has been followed. But George D. Aiken of Vermont, senior Republican in the Senate, said Tuesday the rate increased in the past two weeks to 18,000 per month, suggesting that might represent the new formula. Administration sources have cautioned against drawing that conclusion.

In Saigon the strongest speculation was that the American troop strength would be cut to between 100,000 and 150,000 over the next eight months.

It was noted by official sources today that two major tactical headquarters will be phased out in the near future—the U.S. 2nd Field Force controlling American combat troops in the Saigon area and the 3rd Marine Amphibious Force in the Da Nang area.

Good Friday Services Planned Here

Good Friday Services are the highlights of the church year for many christians around the world and the day is observed in many ways.

Protestants of the world have for many years been observing Good Friday with a three hour service paralleling the three hours that Christ was on the cross, 12 noon to 3:00 p.m.

A three hour Good Friday Service has not been held in Hope for several years, but this Friday five local ministers and the Hope High Choir will present six, twenty-five minute worship periods with a five minute break between each to permit musicians, singer and minister to depart and another group enter. The congregation is invited to stay through the three hours if they can do so, otherwise they may enter and leave between periods. The schedule is as follows.

12:00 to 12:25 - Rev. Gerald Trussell, pastor of the First Baptist Church, "Father, Forgive Them For They Know What They Do."

12:30 to 12:55 - Rev. C. C. Truitt, pastor of the First Assembly of God Church, "Today Shalt Thou Be With Me In Paradise."

1:00 to 1:25 - Rev. Jim Sewell, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, "Woman, Behold Thy Son; Son, Behold Thy Mother."

1:30 to 1:55 - Rev. Al Butler, pastor of the Hope Church of Nazarene, "My God, My God, Why Hath Thou Forsaken Me?"

2:00 to 2:25 - Rev. Norris Steele, pastor of the First United Methodist Church, "It Is Finished"; "Father, Into Thy Hands I Commend My Spirit"

2:30 to 2:55 - Hope High Choir doing a program of religious music under the direction of Miss Juanita Nicholson.

A nursery will be provided for this service at the First Presbyterian Church.

SS Welfare Bill Hikes Living Costs

By EDMOND LeBRETON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Social Security welfare bill that includes cost of living increases for retirees as well as an approximation of President Nixon's family assistance plan has been outlined by the House Ways and Means Committee.

The committee, it was learned, turned the package over to its technical staff for drafting before recessiong for the Easter holiday. Decisions made so far are tentative.

The committee may yet ask another special boost in Social Security benefits, even though a 10 per cent increase is just now taking effect. That question along with possible increases in the Social Security tax will be taken up when the panel returns.

The cost of living plan calls for benefits to rise at the same percentage pace with inflation, whereas payroll taxes would climb at the same rate as the average national wage. Under present law the base wage, effective next year, would be $9,000.

There would be no automatic benefit increase in a year following one in which Congress had legislated a special benefit raise.

For the first time, persons retired for disability, though not their dependents, would be eligible for Medicare. This is now limited to the aged. Disability retirees would be eligible only after two years from retirement.

The retired aged would be allowed to earn $2,000, instead of $1,680, without having their benefits reduced.

Persons over 65 continuing to work would still, as now, have to pay Social Security tax and have their benefits reduced or eliminated according to their earnings. But they would earn extra credit—1 per cent a year—toward their ultimate retirement benefits.

Widows of covered workers would receive 100 per cent, instead of 82½ per cent, of their husband's retirement benefit.

There would be a new scale of minimum benefits for persons long engaged in covered work. The minimum benefit now is $70.40 a month. The new minimum benefit would be $150 for a person in covered employment 30 years, less $5 a year for each year less than that amount.

Charges Filed in Accident

Two charges were filed in an accident involving three vehicles yesterday at Third and Hazel Streets. A car driven by Marvin Chambers of Hope hit the rear of another which had stopped at a red light and was driven by Sam Bradley of Rosston. The vehicle careened into a parked truck owned by Howard Houston. There was considerable damage.

City Patrolman James Purtle charged Bradley with driving with an expired license and Chambers with driving with faulty brakes.

Pullout of 150,000 Seen in 8 Months

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer

SAIGON (AP) — The strongest speculation in Saigon in advance of President Nixon's broadcast is that U.S. troop strength in Vietnam will be cut to between 100,000 and 150,000 during the next eight months.

Official sources noted that two major tactical headquarters will be phased out during the next few months. These are the U.S. 2nd Field Force controlling American combat troops in the Saigon region and the 3rd Marine Amphibious Force commanding Marines in the Da Nang area.

A total of 301,900 American troops were reported in Vietnam on April 1. Nixon announced last year that the authorized ceiling would be reduced to 284,000 by May 1, but sources said the actual strength would drop to perhaps 275,000 during the next three weeks. Peak strength in Vietnam was 543,400 in April 1969.

During the eight months from May 1 until Jan. 1, Nixon is expected to cut strength by 12,500 to 18,000 troops a month, sources said. The President is to announce the rate in a speech tonight.

The remaining 18,500 Marines in Vietnam will be out by the end of June, and the 3rd Marine Amphibious Force disbanded. The Saigon region will be left with one brigade of about 5,000 combat troops by May 1.

Meanwhile, both South Vietnamese and North Vietnamese forces were reported to have suffered heavy losses in fighting Monday and Tuesday in eastern Cambodia near the town of Snuol on Highway 7. Snuol is about eight miles from the Vietnamese border and about 90 miles north of Saigon.

A South Vietnamese communique claimed that 256 North Vietnamese were killed with the help of U.S. fighter-bombers and helicopter gunships. However, the U.S. Command reported 48 enemy killed by air strikes, and the South Vietnamese reported only three weapons captured.

Field reports said more than 60 South Vietnamese troops were killed, but a communique reported two killed, six missing and 58 wounded.

North Vietnamese forces also kept up harassing attacks against U.S. and South Vietnamese forces in the northern and central sectors of South Vietnam.

The U.S. Command reported 15 Americans wounded in three rocket attacks.

State Due to Warm Very Rapidly

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A rapid warming trend was to begin this afternoon in Arkansas and continue through Thursday.

The warmer temperatures will be a welcome relief from the unseasonably cold temperatures recorded this morning.

The 28-degree reading this morning at Little Rock is a record for this late in the spring and equals the lowest April reading recorded in the Capitol city. The high Tuesday at Little Rock of 43 was the lowest maximum temperature recorded for April 5 and was 27 degrees below normal for the date.

A large high pressure mass of cold Canadian air centered over Central Texas is responsible for the cold temperatures. However, the high is expected to move eastward by Thursday.

Highs today were forecast in the 50s to low 60s. Highs Thursday should be in the mid 60s to mid 70s. Lows tonight are forecast in the 30s to mid 40s.

Overnight lows include Fayetteville 24, Harrison 36, Jonesboro 31, Pine Bluff 34, Texarkana 35, El Dorado 31, Memphis 32, Little Rock 28 and Fort Smith 30.

Editorial on Calley Conviction Reprinted by Popular Request

AUSTIN (AP) — The Austin Statesman reprinted Tuesday, "by popular request," an editorial first published the day after the conviction of Lt. William Calley Jr.

The editorial, "Death Comes to the U.S. Army," was written by Austin American-Statesman state editor and military editor Nat Henderson, a Marine overseas veteran of World War II.

Henderson has received hundreds of letters and telephone calls from all over the nation, many requesting reprints of his editorial, the Austin American-Statesman said. Extra copies were made of the reprint Tuesday to satisfy continued demand for the editorial, the paper said.

Here is Henderson's editorial:

"Obituary.

"U.S. Army.

"The U.S. Army, mortally wounded at May Lai on March 16, 1968, died Monday at the age of more than 194 years at Ft. Benning, Ga.

"Survivors include three brothers, the U.S. Air Force, the U.S. Navy and the U.S. Marine Corps. However, all may be suffering from the same affliction to which the Army succumbed.

"The mother also survives, but she is left without visible means of support.

"The Army was preceded in death by discipline, obedience, pride, honor, sacrifice and patriotism.

"They have been succeeded by anarchy, civil disobedience, shame, defeat, selfishness and apathy.

"The death was announced by a general court martial of six men. Funeral rites apparently will be pending for a number of months while the relatives are being returned from Vietnam for the final interment.

"Pallbearers will include Senators Fulbright, Kennedy and McGovern.

"Officiating at the funeral rites will be recent justices of the U.S. Supreme Court and the heads of state of the Soviet Union, North Vietnam and Red China.

"All members of the funeral procession have not been determined, but honorary pallbearers will include moratorium marchers.

"In lieu of flowers, mourners may send old campaign ribbons and victory medals from the Korean conflict, the Berlin airlift, World Wars I and II, the Spanish-American War and other skirmishes which the nation attempted to win.

"Burial will be in the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier.

—Nat Henderson."

Activities of Judge Under Investigation

RUSSELLVILLE, Ark. (AP) —Circuit Judge Russell C. Roberts disqualified himself Tuesday and a special judge was named to empanel and charge a grand jury to investigate activities of Roberts.

Attorneys practicing in Roberts' 5th Judicial District selected from their number C. R. George of Danville as a special judge for the proceeding.

Prosecutor Alex G. Streett of Russellville had asked the state Supreme Court to disqualify Roberts and name a special judge to empanel and charge a grand jury, but that petition was pending when Roberts disqualified himself. The judge took the action by issuing an order from the bench. He had no comment afterward.

Streett has asked for a grand jury session to investigate the charging of fees in the district in felony cases that resulted in suspended sentences. The state Supreme Court held last year that such fees were illegal.

George, a prosecutor of the district in 1945-48, said he wanted to study the case before deciding what type of action to take in regard to Streett's request for a grand jury session.

Problems Need to Be Solved, Says Agnew

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, although agreeing this nation has several urgent needs, said today too much emphasis is being placed on the problems and not enough on attempts to solve them.

"This philosophy, this attitude of 'Let's tell the world how rotten we are and thus expiate our sins,' is being drummed into our consciousness to such an extent that it is becoming part of our national psyche," Agnew said.

His remarks were prepared for delivery to a luncheon of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce.

The Vice President said news coverage of the war in Southeast Asia has been "preponderantly negative in tone—critical of the United States and the South Vietnamese and, in that sense, helpful to Hlorth Vietnam and the Viet Cong."

He said the military is under attack today by people who forget the total dedication of the services to the security of the country and the FBI is criticized for allegedly spying on the nation's citizens.

Turning to federal funding of the SST, recently defeated by Congress, Agnew said "There is more negativism about our effort to maintain technological superiority in the air and outer space than any area except Vietnam.

Reaction to Calley Incident

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Retired Gen. Mark W. Clark, who commanded U.N. forces in the Korean War, says he believes Lt. William L. Calley Jr. should have been removed from command and reprimanded—but not court-martialed—in the My Lai incident.

Clark said in an interview Tuesday he was convinced that no commander ever gave an order to go into any village and kill every living thing. "That just didn't happen, I feel sure of that," he said.

Calley was convicted by a court-martial of premeditated murder in the death of 22 My Lai villagers in 1968 and sentenced to life imprisonment.

"I decry the entire thing," Clark said in Charleston, S.C., "I don't think Calley should ever have been court-martialed ... In my judgment, they should have taken administrative action against all involved.

"Lt. Calley should have been told in no uncertain terms that what he did was wrong," Clark said. "Then he should have been removed from any sort of troop command under official reprimand."

Sen. Adlai Stevenson III, D-Ill., said in New York that he was still waiting for President Nixon to "express support for orderly process of law and the proposition that crimes against humanity must not go unpunished."

Stevenson told a dinner of the Anti-Defamation League that Nixon "once characterized My Lai as a massacre and promised he would bring the perpetrators to justice.

"Now he has released Lt. Calley from the stockade, promised his intervention in the judicial process, and addressed not one word to the decencies and good sense of a people crying out for guidance," he said.

At a news conference before another New York dinner, Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., declared, "President Nixon is playing political football with a very sensitive issue."

"Right or wrong, somebody has go to stand up and say the president has no business involving himself in this case," Bayh said before a dinner of the United Jewish Appeal's lawyers' division.

This Family Really Has Troubles

SHERWOOD, Ore. (AP) — In January, Ronald Preebe, 12, was struck by a sled and his collarbone was broken.

In February, their 7-year-old brother Larry, was hospitalized for surgery on the stub of a previously amputated leg. The operation was delayed and Larry is still waiting.

Last Saturday, their sister Juan, 6, rode her bicycle over a hole, fell to the ground unconscious and may need treatment for a damaged bone near her eye.

"I've never seen such a year," says Delores Preebe, mother of the four children plus two others. With her nerves frayed by the troubles, she is under a doctor's care.

The family has no medical insurance, but the youngsters have received treatment at partial cost at Doernbecher Memorial Hospital in Portland, 15 miles away.

There was one bright spot three weeks ago. Mrs. Preebe's husband, Edward, who had been unemployed, returned to work as a wood laborer.

Croat Gunman Invades Slav Embassy

STOCKHOLM (AP) — Two Croatian gunmen invaded the Yugoslav Embassy today, seriously wounded Ambassador Vladimir Rolovic and kept police at bay for 45 minutes before they surrendered.

Rolovic was rushed to a hospital with a bullet in his head, another in his stomach and a third in a leg.

Two other embassy officials also were wounded.

The gunmen apparently were members of the Free Croatia Movement, which wants to end the union of Crotia and Serbia, Yugoslavia's two main components, and opposes the Communist regime there.

One witness reported the gunem shouted "Long live a free Croatia" when police surrounded the embassy.

Police said the men entered the embassy about 10 a.m. and asked for passports, then grabbed the ambassador as a hostage. A private guard heard shooting and called the police.

Officers surrounded the building and a Serbian interpreter persuaded the pair to surrender. The men gave up after throwing their guns out a window.

Police said about 30 shots had been fired.

Last February, dissident Croats held three Yugoslavs hostage for 24 hours in the consulate at Goteborg, Sweden's second largest city, in a futile attempt to force Yugoslav authorities to free a Croatian terrorist sentenced to death.

Sarver Says Arkansan Can Qualify

RUSSELLVILLE, Ark. (AP) —Robert Sarver, who was fired March 29 as state correction commissioner said Tuesday that it was "utter nonsense" to say the Board of Correction would have to go outside Arkansas to find a professional commissioner.

Sarver, speaking to about 250 students at Arkansas Tech at Russellville, said the "best possible man holds the position now." Bill Steed, superintendent at Cummins Prison Farm, is acting as correction commissioner until a replacement for Sarver can be found.

"He (Steed) is a man who cares and he is fair and tough," Sarver said. "You can run a prison in a gib red barn if you have the right people to do it. You need people who care."

Communists Agree to Talk Again

PARIS (AP) — The Communist delegations agreed today to a session of the Vietnam peace talks Thursday—the first in three weeks.

The North Vietnamese and Viet Cong had called off the March 25 session as a protest against American bombing of North Vietnam. The Americans and South Vietnamese refused to meet the next Thursday but gave no reason repeatedly he would not yield to spurts in public or political clamor in his conduct of the war, several events in recent days have added to pressures that his announcement be a dramatic one.

These include adverse reaction to the South Vietnamese invasion of Laos, the court martial conviction and sentencing to life imprisonment of Lt. William J. Calley, a drop in presidential popularity as reported in various polls, and a number of congressional moves aimed at full withdrawal.

Nixon himself remarked in a March 22 television interview that "the next announcement," the one tonight, "I am sure will give some indication as to the end of the tunnel."

But that was not taken literally as a promise to advance a time certain for fulfilling his longstanding pledge to end the war for all American servicemen.

The President has said that some U.S. troops would remain in Vietnam as long as the enemy refused to release prisoners of war, and administration sources have estimated that 25,000 to 50,000 men would be necessary for the residual force.

Body Found in Stone Co.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

MOUNTAIN VIEW, Ark. (AP)—The body of Wilburn N. Proctor, 51, of Fiftysix (Stone County) was found Tuesday about 12 miles northwest of Mountain View.

State Police said Proctor apparently died in a one-car accident on a county road about three days ago. Officers said Proctor lost control of the vehicle he was driving.

Local Cancer Crusade Needs Help

"People really believe health is beautiful and that's why we urgently need volunteers for the American Cancer Society's 1971 educational and fund raising Crusade said Mrs. Vance Marcum, Chairman for Hempstead.

"We believe that people-to-people contact—folks alerting their relatives, neighbors and friends to cancer's warning signals and helping to raise fighting funds—is part of the combination that will increasingly turn the tide against these dread diseases called cancer," declared Mrs. Marcum. "The other part is the dedication and skill of thousands of physicians and researchers searching for causes and better treatments.

"Those who give their time and talent this year will join hands with more than 2 million other volunteers in thousands of American communities whose dedication has already helped save increasing numbers of lives," said Mrs. Marcum.

"There is an even greater challenge this year," Mrs. Marcum said, "for we must reach out to people never contacted before. Every house - apartment in Hope must be visited in Crusade 1971, beginning April 1. Every one with even a few hours to spare can help. Families must get the facts about cancer. One key part of the Crusade," she said "is distributing life-saving leaflets telling how you can protect yourself against cancer.

"Many cancer deaths are needless since the chances of a cure are good with early diagnosis," Mrs. Marcum said. She pointed out that more than 1,500,000 Americans are alive today who were cured of cancer.

"We want to wipe out cancer in your lifetime and it's up to us to tell everyone we can reach that the regular health checkups and early diagnosis can save lives," she said.

"Everyone who believes health is beautiful is needed by the Hope American Cancer Society Unit. You can also call us at 777-6772.

Wedding Vows Are Repeated

MRS. DAVID K. CHAMBERS

At five o'clock Saturday afternoon, March 27, Miss Mildred Rhonda Rider, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ollace Rider of Texarkana, and David Keith Chambers, son of Mrs. Jean Chambers of Little Rock, and David S. Chambers of Pine Bluff, were united in a candlelighted ceremony in the home of the bride's parents.

Officiating the double ring ceremony was Dr. Doyle Eakin.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore an empire silhouette of street length chantilly lace over bridal satin fashioned with sheer lace long fitted sleeves and a satin Dior bow at the waistline. Her elbow length veil of imported silk illusion was secured to a Dior bow of bridal satin. She observed the traditional "something old, new, borrowed and blue, with a six-pence in her shoe." Her bouquet was a garland of white carnations.

Miss Phyllis Rider served as her sister's only attendant. Harvey Taylor was best man.

A reception followed the ceremony.

After a brief wedding trip, the couple will make their home in Texarkana where both are employed. Rhonda is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Boyce of Hope, Rt. 1 and Mrs. Oscar Rider of Patmos, and the Late Oscar T. Rider.

HELEN HELP US!

by Helen Bottel

IT'S STILL THE BEST GAME IN TOWN

Dear Helen:

With all the divorces, separations and hateful living together these days, why is marriage still so darn popular? I'd guess 95 per cent of the adult population is either married or actively hunting for a mate. Ask the average teenage girl what she wants most in life. Not a career. That comes second, if at all. She's after a man!

Seems to me that young girls are more hellbent on marriage now than they were back when I was young. And men have never been very good resisters.

Is this because wedding vows aren't "forever" any more? People, perhaps, are eager to take a chance when they know divorce is an easy solution?—T.G.

Dear T.:

Perhaps, though divorce has never been an "easy solution." Even California's no-adversary "dissolutions" bring misery, because a break-up proves failure somewhere along the line.

Marriage remains popular because it's still the best game in town. It offers the security of love and an end to loneliness. And if the hazards are many, well, so are the benefits, should you win.—H.

Dear Helen:

You said, "Marriage isn't for everyone." It certainly isn't for my husband!

I'm called attractive. I'm loving, a good housekeeper, and I don't even nag.

Yet three nights a week my husband goes to school and the other four he's working on race cars or drinking and playing pool. I only see him at bedtime. We never go out, or even talk.

He thinks he's got the perfect marriage: Freedon plus a live-in, love-in maid. And I love him, so I take it!

Is this all marriage is?—SITTING HOME AND WAITING

Dear S.H. and W.:

When you've got a Married Bachelor on your hands, what you take is what you get. Re-educate him by being "out" when he comes home—occasionally—and never, never let him know you only saw a movie witn another waiting wife.—H.

Dear Helen:

The more I read, the more frightened I become of marriage. According to certain magazines and books (by anonymous authors), a woman has to be the greatest sexual athlete since Mata Hari to keep one man from roaming. Never mind beauty, or being an interesting conversationalist or a good person, it's performance in bed that counts!

I'm appalled and also worried. While I think I'm as sexy as most, some of what these writers insist marriage demands, is not for me. If men read—and expect—then a lot of us gals just aren't going to qualify. And we aren't cold either!

Why doesn't someone come out with a sane book on marriage? Or wouldn't it sell?—SCARED

Dear Scared:

There ARE sane books on marriage, but you're right: They don't sell nearly as well as the kinky ones.

A good rule: Whatever is MUTUALLY enjoyed, done in the context of loving and sharing, is right for your marriage. Then "performance" takes care of itself.—H.

Will Probe DDT Link to Infertility

By STAN BENJAMIN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Environmental Protection Agency says it will examine new medical suspicions of a link between DDT and infertility in women to see whether they justify immediate banning of the pesticide.

Less than three weeks ago, on March 18, EPA Administrator William D. Ruckelshaus said DDT and four other commercial poisons could remain on the market pending a final decision on banning them.

He rejected requests that their sales be suspended during the official review, which could take a year or more, saying there was not enough evidence of an "imminent hazard" to human health.

Gynecologist W. Leroy Heinrichs and physiologist Ronald J. Gellert, both of the University of Washington, reported to the American Cancer Society indications of a possible connection between DDT and a delayed-action loss of fertility in women.

They cited as evidence laboratory tests on rats and an apparent increase of fertility loss among women treated at Heinrichs' clinic, which specializes in such disorders.

Ruckelshaus was not available for comment, but a spokesman for his agency said its pesticides office would study closely the Heinrichs-Gellert report.

Asked whether such findings could prevent the "imminent hazard" to human health needed to justify immediate suspension of DDT sales, the spokesman said:

"We are going to look into it very thoroughly to explore whether the findings are valid and whether they are strong enough to justify a finding of imminent hazard; and, if not, whether more research is indicated."

Home Buyers Hamstrung by Federal Forms

By G. DAVID WALLACE
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Future home-buyers may find themselves hamstrung by a proposed federal form for home loan contracts tailor-made to lenders' specifications, say Ralph Nader and Sen. William Proxmire.

The proposed form was drafted, with advice from lenders only, by two government-spawned corporations, the Federal National Mortgage Association and the Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corporation. If adopted it likely would become standard for all home mortgages.

Spokesmen for lenders defended the proposals at a public hearing Monday as necessary to protect their interests and assure an adequate supply of home loan money.

Proxmire, D-Wis., said the forms would "severely cripple the legal rights of the American homebuyer.

One provision would permit mortgage holders to start foreclosure proceedings without notice if a homebuyer fell 30 days behind on a payment, Proxmire said.

Consumer advocate Nader, who joined in Proxmire's criticism, said the form would permit mortgage holders to stage inspections of the property at will.

Proxmire also complained the form would allow lenders to require borrowers to pay into unlimited, noninterest bearing accounts for payment of taxes and insurance on the property.

Under another feature the lender could siphon off insurance payments for damage to the property, apply the money to the loan principal and leave the buyer to pay for the damage from his own pocket, Proxmire said.

Lenders would resort to the extreme measures in rare instances, said Lewis E. Eaton, president of the U.S. Savings and Loan League, which represents the institutions making most of the nation's conventional home loans.

But Nader countered by saying, "Excessive power can always be abused, and prior history may not be an accurate guide."

Nader criticized the Federal National Mortgage Association, nicknamed Fannie Mae, for excluding consumers from the initial drafting of the documents and said he fears the forms already are beyond repair.

Fannie Mae and the Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corporation, both privately owned but government-controlled, previously purchased from initial lenders only those mortgages underwritten by the Veteran's Administration and Federal Housing Administration.

Knicks Down Bullets in Playoffs

By MIKE RECHT
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — "Reed had the ball and tried to pass it. I tipped it to Earl, he slapped at it trying to pass back to me and Riordan intercepted. We never had possession."

That's the way Kevin Loughery of Baltimore was explaining the play—Willis Reed of New York to Loughery to Earl Monroe of Baltimore to Mike Riordan of New York, and no one had possession.

"I'm not saying it cost us the ballgame, but I'd like to have those three points back at this time," Loughery said in the locker room after the New York Knicks had beaten the Baltimore Bullets 112-111 Tuesday night in another knock down, dragout game between the two determined rivals.

The victory, on Dave DeBusschere's six points in the final minutes and Reed's jumper with six seconds left, gave the Knicks a 1-0 lead in the best-of-7 game Eastern Conference final which resumes here Friday afternoon.

In the only other National Basketball Association playoff game of the night, Los Angeles beat Chicago 109-98 and won the Western Conference semifinal series, four games to three.

The controversial play, which prompted the Bullets to play the game under protest, occurred in the opening minutes of the final quarter after Baltimore, playing without injured All Star forward Gus Johnson, came back from a nine-point second period deficit to take a 90-86 lead.

Three straight points by the Knicks made it 90-89, and then came the play, which ended with Reed's basket and a technical foul shot by Cazzie Russell for the Knicks.

Coach Gene Shue of the Bullets leaped to his feet screaming that time on the 24-second clock had run out on the Knicks. He claimed the clock shouldn't have been reset as it was, during the play because the Bullets never had possession.

An Opener for Brewery Gathering

PITTSBURGH (AP) — There was a gathering of brewery workers here and for once somebody had an opener.

It was the season's first baseball game for the Pittsburgh Pirates and the Philadelphia Phillies Tuesday and the brewery workers gathered to protest exclusive sale of a rival in the stands of Three Rivers Stadium.

In defiance of two court orders, the pickets, whose number swelled to 200 just before game time, ringed the stadium carrying signs reading: "Duquesne Brewery Employes Informational Picket-Pirates Management Unfair to Duke Beer."

They were protesting a decision by Recreational Services, Inc., to sell only Iron City beer in the stands, while permitting Duke and Budweiser to be sold at its concession booths.

The demonstration, which some thought might interrupt the start of the ball game, was orderly. About an hour before game time, two U.S. Marshals confronted the picket leaders with a federal consent order which called for a 15-day cooling-off period during which the stadium concessionaire and the brewery workers were to attempt to iron out their dispute.

Floridians, Nets Really Fight Back

By BRUCE LOWITT
Associated Press Sports Writer

The New York Nets and Floridians knew they really had to fight to get back into contention in the American Basketball Association playoffs—but no one expected them to be quite so literal about it.

The Nets erupted early in the fourth quarter for a 12-point lead, then held off Virginia for a 135-131 victory and the Floridians used a fast break to wear down Kentucky 120-102 in Tuesday night's East Division semifinals.

In the only other ABA game Utah blasted Texas in the second half to beat the Chaps 128-107 and win their West Division semifinal in a four-game sweep. The Stars meet the winner of the Memphis-Indiana series, which Indiana leads 3-1.

In the National Basketball Association, the New York Knicks squeezed by Baltimore 112-111 in the first game of their best-of-7 Eastern Conference final and Los Angeles toppled Chicago 109-98 in the seventh and final game of their Western Conference semifinals. The Lakers will meet Milwaukee in the finals.

By winning, the Nets cut Virginia's lead in their series to 2-1 and the Floridians did the same in their round with Kentucky. But it wasn't basketball that delighted the fans at each game. It was basketbrawl.

A melee broke out in the closing seconds of the Nets' game with New York's high-scoring Rick Barry and Virginia rookie Charlie Scott as the principals. Before it was over both benches had joined the fistfight. It took officials nearly 10 minutes to restore order.

The third-period hostilities between the Floridians and Colonels was mild by comparison. First double fouls were called on Kentucky's Cincy Powell and the Floridians' Sam Robinson. Then Powell and Ira Harge of the Floridians were ejected for fisticuffs.

The Nets trailed 99-97 entering the final period, then outscored Virginia 18-4 to take a 12-point lead.

The Squires cut it to 130-128 with about half a minute to play when Barry drove in for a layup and was belted by Scott as he scored. The fight broke out immediately and Mike Barrett of Virginia quickly pounced on Barry before players from both teams streamed onto the court.

When it was over, Barry sank the foul shot for his 43rd and final point, then Scott sank a technical called against Barry. Scott and Barrett scored 27 apiece for the Squires.

The Floridians breezed to a 33-26 first-quarter lead, widened it to 64-52 at the half and were 22 point ahead when the tempers flared. Mack Calvin's 24 points topped the winners. Les Hunter, who led Kentucky back within 12 points in the fourth quarter, topped the Colonels with 21.

The Stars trailed 57-54 at the half but vaulted to an 89-80 third-quarter lead and ran away from the Chaparrals in the final period. Ron Boone topped Utah with 23 points but Levern Tart of Texas took honors with 31.

Willie Mays Wastes No Time at All

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

Say Hey, how's that for openers?

Willie Mays wasted no time getting into the swing of the 1971 baseball season. In fact, the onetime Say Hey Kid, didn't even waste any pitches.

Mays rocked the first pitch he saw for his 629th career home run Tuesday night, triggering San Francisco's 4-0 victory over San Diego in their National League opener.

Elsewhere in the National League Tuesday, Los Angeles shut out Houston 2-0, Chicago shaded St. Louis 2-1 in 10 innings, Pittsburgh trimmed Philadelphia 4-2, and New York defeated Montreal 4-2 in a game ended by rain in the fifth inning. Atlanta and Cincinnati were not scheduled.

In the American League, Boston downed New York 3-1, Detroit belted Cleveland 8-2, Milwaukee thumped Minnesota 7-2 and Kansas City tripped California 4-1. Chicago, Baltimore, Washington and Oakland were off.

Mays, who is one month away from his 40th birthday, unloaded on Tom Phoebus' first pitch to him in the opening inning and gave the ex-Baltimore hurler an instant if unpleasant welcome to the National League.

Later, Mays doubled and scored the Giants' third run, giving Juan Marichal all the offense he needed. The high-kicking San Francisco ace limited the Padres to five hits and coasted to the victory.

In Chicago, two other aces, Bob Gibson of St. Louis and the Cubs' Ferguson Jenkins, hooked up in a classic pitcher's duel. Billy Williams ended that confrontation with a 10th inning homer to win it for Jenkins.

Joe Torre's seventh inning homer—one of only three hits allowed by Jenkins—had tied the game.

Billy Buckner's first major league homer produced both Los Angeles runs and Claude Osteen's four-hit pitching carried the Dodgers past the Astros.

Buckner tagged Houston's Don Wilson for the homer in the fourth inning after Willie Davis had singled. That was all Osteen needed.

Tom Seaver limited Montreal to four singles and the Mets topped the Expos in their rain-abbreviated opener.

New York hopped on Carl Morton, last year's NL Rookie of the Year, for a pair of unearned runs in the second inning and that turned out to be the difference. Jerry Grote doubled one of the runs home and Tommie Agee singled the other across.

Dock Ellis scattered eight hits and Pittsburgh took advantage of four Philadelphia errors to whip the Phillies. Ellis drove in one of the Pirate runs with a neat bunt. Later, Ellis sacrificed again, setting up another Pittsburgh run.

Allin Going After the Magnolia Title

HATTIESBURG, Miss. (AP) — A freckled young Vietnam veteran fresh from his first victory on the Professional Golfers Association tour will be shooting for two straight Thursday when he tees off in the 46th annual Magnolia State Classic.

Brian Allin won the Greensboro Open last Sunday on the first hole of a sudden death playoff.

He is in the field of the $35,000 satellite event here since that Greensboro victory did not qualify him for an invitation to the Masters, also being held this week.

Several other top pros not included in the elite Masters field will be here trying for the $5,000 first prize. Among them are three defending champions—Chris Blocker, Larry Mowry and Mac McLendon.

Allin, 26, shot a practice round Tuesday as did former PGA champion Bobby Nichols and Mississippian Johnny Pott.

Another Mississippi native in the field is Pete Brown, who finished fourth last week at Greensboro. Doug Sanders, one of the tour's most colorful golfers was expected to arrive today in time to play in the pro-am round.

Mrs. King Is Leading Both Score, Money

NEW YORK (AP) — Billie Jean King is both the leading money winner and No. 1 in the point standings on the women's pro tennis tour according to the weekly statistics released Tuesday.

Mrs. King has won $27,750 and has 112 points in the tour sponsored by Virginia Slims. The point standings determine the 12 seeded players in the $30,000 Caesar's Palace championship next week in Las Vegas.

Rounding out the top 12, as of April 6, in the point standings are: Kerry Melville, 53; Judy Tegert Dalton 45; Peaches Bartkowicz 44; Valerie Ziegenfuss 43, Denis Carter 41, Mary Ann Curtis 40, Kristy Pigeon 36 and Karen Krantzcke 34.

Kosco Leads Milwaukee Over Twins

By Herschel Nissenson
Associated Press Sports Writer

Tuesday was a lovely day in Minnesota ... until Andy Kosco showed up.

Kosco and his loud bat accounted for four runs batted in with a home run, double and sacrifice flyin Milwaukee's 7-2 rout of the Twins, leaving the Brewers in what is expected to be a short-lived tie for first place in the American League West with their expansion brethren, the Kansas City Royals, who trimmed the California Angels 4-1.

Four other AL teams also opened their seasons. Ray Culp hurled a five-hitter as the Boston Red Sox topped the New York Yankees 3-1 and the Detroit Tigers made a successful debut under manager Billy Martin with an 8-2 trouncing of the Cleveland Indians.

In the National League, Pittsburgh downed Philadelphia 4-2, the Chicago Cubs nipped St. Louis 2-1 in 10 innings, the New York Mets shaded Montreal 4-2 in a game called by rain in the last of the fifth, Los Angeles blanked Houston 2-0 and San Francisco whitewashed San Diego 4-0.

Kosco, an ex-Twin who had brief trials with Minnesota in 1965-67, homered off Perry in the third inning, brought home a run against Jim Katt with a sacrifice fly in the sixth and smacked a two-run double off rookie Ray Corbin in the eighth.

Dick Drago checked the pennant-minded Angels on six hits and Cookie Rojas drove in two runs with an infield out and a sacrifice fly in Kansas City's victory. Paul Schaal singled a run home as the Royals chased Wright, a 22-game winner last season, in the sixth and Buck Martinez drove in another with a sacrifice fly. The only run off Drago was unearned.

Boston's Culp was working on a one-hitter through seven innings—Thurman Munson's squib single in the fourth—but needed Reggie Smith's fine throw to get out of trouble in the eighth against the Yankees.

Doubles by Smith and Carl Yastrzemski in the fourth and Culp's run-scoring grounder in the seventh gave the Red Sox a 2-0 lead. The Yanks threatened to catch up on Horace Clarke's bases-loaded single, but Smith gunned down Jim Lyttle, carrying the potential tying run, at the plate for the final out. The Yankees argued that catcher Duane Josephson blocked the plate without the ball but lost the quarrel and the game, too.

A record opening day crowd of 54,089 in Detroit saw Mickey Lolich pitch a six-hitter and Jim Northrup slam a two-run triple for the Tigers. They roughed up Steve Hargan for two runs each in the second and third innings and nailed rookie Chuck Machemehl for three in the fourth.

Belcher Leads Nation in Percentage

JONESBORO, Ark. (AP) — John Belcher of Arkansas State University led the NCAA college division in basketball field goal percentage, according to statistics released Tuesday.

Belcher, a 6-9, 225-pound junior, hit 174 of 175 shots — a percentage of .633.

Belcher wound up the season with an average of 18.5 points a game and 13 rebounds a game.

American League—West

Lou Piniella

Bob Oliver

PROSPECTUS: Bob Lemon starts his first full season as manager with a team that is flirting with respectability. Royals have some fine young talent, such as Amos Otis and Lou Piniella, and helped themselves by picking up Fred Patek and Jerry May from Pittsburgh. They may not be ready to contend for a title yet, but they will hold their own against some teams (Baltimore won't be one of them—they're 1-23 vs. Orioles last two seasons).

PITCHING—Bob Johnson struck out 206 in 214 innings and, with better support, would have finished better than 8-13. But he was sent to Pittsburgh, leaving little behind. Jim Rooker won 10 games, Dick Drago nine. Wally Bunker recovered from 0-8 start and won last five. But Roger Nelson and Bill Butler were disappointments. Bullpen has Bruce Del Canton, from Pittsburgh, and Ted Abernathy. Rating: C—

CATCHING—May, who backed up Manny Sanguillen in Pittsburgh last season, will move into starting job. Carl Taylor, from Milwaukee, will spell him. Rating: B—

INFIELD—Bob Oliver (27 homers, 99 RBIs) is sound at first base, but rest of infield is shaky. Cookie Rojas at second and Paul Schaal at third showing their years. Patek, a 5-foot-4, 145-pounder who is the smallest player in the majors, takes over at short. Rating: C

OUTFIELD—Otis had a fine season in center field—he hit .284 with 11 home runs, 58 RBIs and stole 33 bases. Piniella in left hit .301, with 11 homers and 88 RBIs. Joe Keough, recovered from broken leg, is in right. He hit .322 in abbreviated action last season. Good utilityman is Ed Kirkpatrick, who hit 18 homers and drove in 62 runs. He can also catch and was last year's regular. Rating: B+

ROOKIES TO WATCH—Pitcher Jim York may work into rotation, and catcher John Martinez may be kept around for insurance.

Predicted Finish: 4th in West

Both Sides Acting Like Gentlemen

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — Both sides are acting like gentlemen, but, nevertheless, it seems certain that Joe Theismann will not be in a Miami Dolphin uniform when early camp opens in July.

The All-American quarterback from Notre Dame will be up in Canada, instead, playing for the Toronto Argonauts despite a hurry-up trip by Dolphin Coach Don Shula to South Ben Monday.

Theismann, still attending classes at Notre Dame, said he and Shula talked "in gentlemanly fashion."

"I want to make it perfectly clear that I have never made any drogatory remarks about the Dolphins," Theismann said Tuesday.

"Earlier in our negotiations there had been some discrepancies in legal terminology. But they were resolved as of last week. Since that time I have given a lot of thought to the difference in security and money involved," he said.

Theismann added, "The final contract they (the Dolphins) sent me suited me and the problems we had earlier were resolved."

But last Sunday, Theismann flew to Toronto and put his signature on a contract. Toronto offered me more money, security for my family. I'm still shooting for the stars, but not as an individual any more. I have a family (his wife Shari) now and I can't think only of myself."

The hero of last January's Irish victory over Texas in the Cotton Bowl said he wanted to make it clear "I am not in the least bit doubtful I can play in the National Football League. That did not enter into my decision."

China Invites U.S. Team in Table Tennis

NAGOYA, Japan (AP) — Communist China has invited the U.S. team at the 31st world table tennis championships to visit China for "friendly" matches, Rufford Harrison, leader of the U.S. team, said Wednesday.

"We have not yet decided if we're going to accept the Chinese invitation," said Harrison. "We're going to have a meeting this afternoon and we'll have to tell the Chinese of our decision tonight because we'll leave Nagoya for a sightseeing tour of Japan in the morning."

The Nagoya championships, which began March 28, end Wednesday.

The invitation to the Americans was issued by the Communist Chinese delegation at the tournament. Communist China is competing in its first world tournament in six years.

Earlier in the tournament, the Chinese invited Canada and England to send their teams to the mainland following the championships, and both accepted.

Bruins Prove Unbeatable at Home

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

"Nobody can beat us at home. We're too good," said Boston's Johnny McKenzie. The Bruins were, in fact, almost unbeatable at home, as was New York.

That's why the Bruins, who dropped only three of 39 home contests, and the Rangers, who lost but two, are favored—along with Chicago and St. Louis—as the National Hockey League opens Stanley Cup playoff action tonight.

The defending champion Bruins host Montreal, whom they beat five of six times in regular-season play, including 6-3 and 7-2 romps in the final week.

New York takes on visiting Toronto. The Rangers were 5-1 against the Maple Leafs this year, but Rangers Coach Emile Francis warned; "In the playoffs, you can't take anything for granted."

In Chicago, the West Division champion Black Hawks take on Philadelphia. The Hawks not only dominated the Flyers 4-1-1 this season, but Philly hasn't been able to win even once in Chicago since entering the NHL four years ago.

Minnesota finished fourth in the West but still managed to post a 3-1-2 record against second-place St. Louis, which hosts the first two games of that series. "We've got to start over now," said North Stars Coach Jack Gordon, "and we really can't be too confident. We barely made the playoffs."

In a departure from previous playoffs, the league has revised the post-season action in hopes of producing the best matchup in the finals.

After the first round, the divisions will have interlocking semifinals with the Boston-Montreal winner in the East facing the West winner between St. Louis and Minnesota while the New York-Toronto East survivor faces the Chicago-Philadelphia West winner. That could result in an all-East or all-West final.

Scorecard Incident Recalled

By HUBERT MIZELL
Associated Press Sports Writer

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Roberto De Vicenzo's "magnificent stupidity" killed the golfing gaucho's dreams of a Masters championship and the world refuses to forget.

"My dumb scorecard made me famous," he says, "but people can't remember who won the Masters that year. They have to ask me." Roberto knows.

It's been three years since the gent of the Argentine signed a miscounted scorecard, costing De Vicenzo a playoff spot and handing the title to Bob Goalby.

"No use crying the rest of my life," smiled the banananosed De Vicenzo. "I've won 130 tournaments in my career including the British Open. But, I wanted badly to win a major championship in the United States."

The friendly international golfing figure is one of 15 foreign golfers in Thursday's 77-man field for the 35th Masters. Goalby is here, too, but neither is rated among favored names such as Nicklaus, Player, Casper and Palmer.

The player in Thursday's field who really wants to forget the 1968 blunder is Georgia-born Tommy Aaron. It was Aaron, playing as Roberto's final-round partner, who wrote a par 4 instead of the actual birdie 3 De Vicenzo scored on the 17th hole.

De Vicenzo failed to catch the mistake and, as the Masters crowd prepared for a playoff, word came that Roberto had erroneously charged himself an extra stroke.

The murmur of "grand Slam" was on many Augusta National lips as Jack Nicklaus turned up in quest of his fourth Masters title and a shot at winning golf's "Big Four" in one year.

Nicklaus captured the PGA championship six weeks ago at Palm Beach Gardens, Fla., and Las Vegas oddsmaker Jimmy "The Greek" Snyder figures the Golden Bear at 100-1 to add the 1971 Masters, U.S. Open and British Open to his bag.

If Jack is 100-1, the rest have no chance at all.

Nicklaus was a 6-1 shot in the Masters, followed by 8-1 picks Gary Player, Arnold Palmer and defending champion Billy Casper. The big names were back in golf and nothing could make the Augusta National Aristocrats happier.

A field of 77 included 52 American pros, 14 foreigners, 10 U.S. amateurs and one amateur from overseas. Top prize from the estimated $205,000 prize fund is a scant $20,000, but this is one where the title is everything.

Lincoln Downs Hopes to Resume Racing

LINCOLN, R.I. (AP) — Lincoln Downs hoped to resume operations today after a combination of cold, snow and high winds forced a halt in Tuesday night's thoroughbred racing program at the end of the seventh race.

The jockeys asked for cancellation of the last two races, and management agreed. Temperatures were around 32 degrees, winds were 35 to 40 miles per hour, and the snow was coming down so hard by that time that visibility was virtually nil.

Herve Fillion Tries to Hit Milestone

By RALPH BERNSTEIN
Associated Press Sports Writer

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Herve Fillion tries again tonight to reach a milestone attained by only one sulky driver in harness racing history. He was snowed out Tuesday night.

Fillion has won 2,999 races during his 18 years in the bikes. He needs just one to make it 3,000, a plateau reached by Billy Haughton in the ancient sport of trotting and pacing.

The 31-year-old Fillion, who drove in his first race at the age of 13, tried three times Tuesday night to gain his 3,000 victory. The best he could do was second in the fifth, the last

Lakers May Look Over Some Movies

By JACK STEVENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Movies could be the next assignment for the Los Angeles Lakers who have eliminated Chicago from the National Basketball Association playoffs and now must face the favored Milwaukee Bucks.

The Lakers surged in the later stages of the fourth quarter Tuesday night before a crowd of 17,505 at the Forum to beat the Bulls 109-98 and win the series four games to three.

On Friday, they open the best four-of-seven-game series for the Western title at Milwaukee.

Since Los Angeles won only once in six regular-season meetings with Milwaukee, Lakers Coach Joe Mullaney commented:

"It did help us once before when we looked at films of them and we may try it again. I think maybe we can surprise them a little bit."

Meanwhile, in the opening game of the Eastern final playoffs, New York edges Baltimore 112-111.

Gail Goodrich, the 6-foot-1 guard, averaged 17 points per game during the regular season and 30 in the seven playoff games against Chicago. Jim McMillian, the rookie for Columbia, drew a starting asignment with superstar Jerry West out with a knee injury which required surgery last month.

Chicago Coach Dick Motta commented, "Wilt Chamberlain was their real catalyst on defense. If Chamberlain (6-foot-1) plays this kind of intimidating defense against Milwaukee, the Lakers can make it very interesting for the Bucks.

"We had more shots in that final game than in any other game of the series, but they just didn't drop and when they don't drop, there is nothing you can do about it."

Each team won all its victories at home and Motta remains most unhappy that Los Angeles gained the advantage by winning the Pacific Division title.

He points out that Chicago, second in the Midwest, won more games during the regular season, 51, than did Los Angeles, 48. Yet the Lakers got the home court advantage four times.

Goodrich wound up as high point man with 29. Chamberlain scored 25 and Happy Hairston 22. For Chicago, Bob Love and Jerry Sloan each had 24. Chamberlain led rebounders with 19.

Games Friday night and Sunday afternoon will be played in Milwaukee. The third and fourth games of the series will be at the Forum the following Wednesday and Friday nights.

event on the snow-shortened card at Liberty Bell Park.

After the fifth race, Liberty Bell officials called off the remaining four events because of the hazardous condition of the track caused by a surprise April snow storm.

Fillion said he wasn't disappointed. "The track was real tough, and I was happy to see them call it off," he commented. "I think I'll win another race this year, if not tomorrow, (Wednesday) then the next day."

The little French Canadian probably will handle four or five horses tonight. Liberty Bell is ready for his big victory with an appropriate sign, trophy and a reception after the race.

The only real shot Fillion had to win Tuesday night was in the fifth race.He had the 6-5 favorite, Black Arrow A., in second place the entire mile trip. Ava Java, reined by Lee Daniels Jr., took the lead at the start and won by some three lengths.

Fillion said he realized he couldn't catch Ava Java when the field raced through the back stretch the second time around. "I knew I was dead when I wouldn't make up anything, so I concentrated on saving second," Fillion said.

Haughton, who has won 47 races this year, reached the 3,000 mark on Nov. 19, 1968 at Roosevelt Raceway in New York. His record has been attained over a longer period than Fillions.

SHAVING STROKES

by Frank Beard

Trust Your Feel

In dispensing golf instruction, I prefer to keep it fairly simple. I avoid advising you to adopt what will prove to be only a temporary cure. I don't want you to "cure" a fault with a fault.

It is very easy, for the successful touring professional as well as the weekend player, to listen to too much instruction. Your mind becomes so cluttered with tips on the mechanics of swinging the club that you forget to concentrate on simply hitting the ball at the target.

The golf swing can be looked on as quite complex, but it doesn't have to be. And it never should be when you're coming up to the actual process of hitting the ball. I think all of us have a lot more feel with a golf club in our hands than we give ourselves credit for. We forget to use it, because it pretty much comes naturally.

We should think more positively (apologies to Dr. Norman Vincent Peale) and stop worrying ourselves out of making adequate to excellent golf shots. Dave Stockton won the 1970 PGA Championship and credited a book about psycho-cybernetics. The book, in one place, suggests that our subconscious will take over and do a fine job if we will let it. It will direct the muscles to make adjustments during the swing so that we hit the ball well even if the swing isn't picture-perfect. But first you have to believe that you have enough feel. Trust yourself not to worry about four dozen things that could go wrong with your swing.

Yorty Film to Be Shown Overseas

WASHINGTON (AP) — Los Angeles Mayor Sam W. Yorty, described in his official biography as the nation's "most colorful and controversial municipal administrator," is the subject of a feature film to be shown overseas by the U.S. Information Agency.

"There's no question Sam Yorty is considered a maverick," said Bruce Herschensohn, head of the USIA movie and television service. "And that's one of the things that's brought out in the movie."

Yorty, a Democrat who supported Richard Nixon for president in 1960 and won a third term while trading racism charges with his black opponent, has been selected for the USIA series, "One Man."

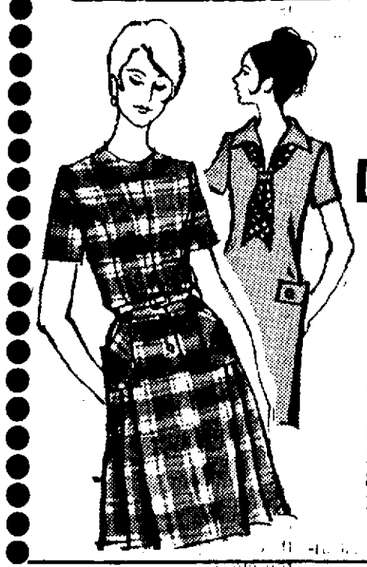

The series' "point of emphasis is one man's contribution to society," said Herschensohn.

The agency's films, including those on the president and vice president, are barred from U.S. showings. A special law permitted domestic showings of a documentary on assassinated President John F. Kennedy.

House Caught in Squeeze on School Funds

By JOHN BECKLER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House was caught today in a squeeze between the threat of a presidential veto and pressure from a powerful education lobby as it prepared to vote on funds for the U.S. Office of Education.

The educators wanted to add $728 million to a $4.7 billion appropriations committee bill already $101 million over President Nixon's education budget.

"The House will be looking down the barrel of a veto if it adopts this amendment," said Rep. Robert H. Michel, R-Ill., a senior member of the Appropriations Committee, during debate on the bill Tuesday.

Rep. William D. Hathaway, D-Maine, who offered the amendment, called it "an extremely modest increase" which would still leave most education programs far below the funding levels authorized by Congress.

The amendment was put together by a variety of education organizations calling themselves the Emergency Committee for Full Funding of Education.

The group has brought scores of teachers and other education personnel to Washington this week to try to round up votes for the Hathaway amendment.

Rep. Daniel J. Flood, D-Pa., who is managing the bill for the Appropriations Committee, urged the House not to let federal aid to education become a political football.

Flood recalled that the last time Congress added a huge sum to Nixon's education budget, the resulting veto delayed final enactment of the bill until the school year was nearly over.

Nixon has vetoed the education bills for the last two years. Congress sustained the first one and overrode the second.

Adding to the likelihood that Nixon would veto any increase of the size proposed by Hathaway, is the fact the administration has finally put together its revenue sharing proposal for education.

In a message sent to Congress Tuesday Nixon called for the consolidation of three programs into a $3 billion fund which would go to the states for redistribution. Most of the programs involved in the Hathaway amendment would be included in the proposal.

Although Nixon would like the new plan to take effect Jan. 1, there is no likelihood of Congress acting that quickly, if it approves the program at all, which is doubtful since it has little support in the key education committees of the House and Senate.

Manson and Family Face Second Trial

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Charles Manson and three members of his "family" must stand trial together for the 1969 murders of musician Gary Hinman, 34, and ranch hand Donald "Shorty" Shea, 36, a Superior Court judge has ruled.

Attorneys for Manson, 36, Susan Atkins, 22, Bruce Davis, 27, and Steve Grogan, 19, argued a joint trial would prejudice Miss Atkins, indicted only for the Hinman killing, and would prejudice Grogan, indicted only for the Shea murder, because evidence from one case would prejudice the other.

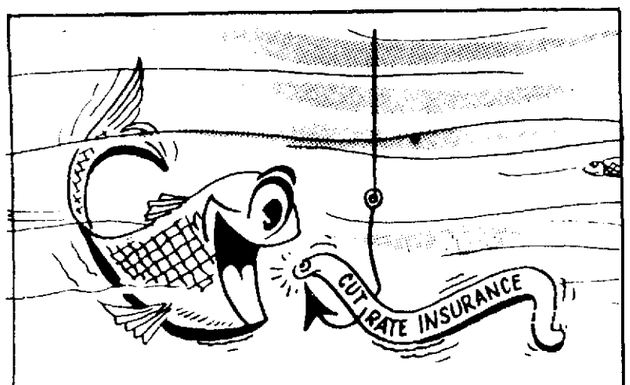

But Judge Raymond Choate said Tuesday the Hinman and Shea crimes were of the same class and contained common elements that merited a joint trial, scheduled for May 20.

Manson and Davis are accused of both slayings. Shea's body has never been found.

Manson, Miss Atkins and two other women have been sentenced to death in the Sharon Tate murders.

Red Leaders Ask More Production

by STEPHENS BROENING
Associated Press Writer

MOSCOW (AP) — Neither threats, appeals to patriotism nor money succeeded in spurring the Soviet worker to feats of sustained production.

Now the Soviet leaders are promising him more to spend his money on, and Western observers are calling this "The Education of Leonid I. Brezhnev."

Whether or not he conceived the idea, Brezhnev, as general secretary of the Communist party, is taking credit for the party's new campaign to "saturate the market with consumer goods."

The leadership clearly hopes that the availability of more consumer items will prompt the worker to work harder and better.

The outcome of the new five-year plan for 1971-75 depends on the success of the campaign; increased labor productivity is counted on to provide 10 per cent of the nation's economic growth in the next five years.

Holding out a higher standard of living as an incentive to labor represents a marked change in Brezhnev's thinking.

At a meeting of the party Central Committee in December 1969 he was reported to have demanded a traditional hard-line approach, stressing the need at every level to agitate for harder work, better discipline and a curb on drunkenness.

This didn't work, nor did payment of higher wages for more output.

The worker is not lacking surplus cash. Last year the fastest growing item in the Soviet economy was private savings, which increased from 38.4 billion rubles to 46 billion, a 20 per cent rise.

Brezhnev has recognized that people are not going to work harder for money they can't spend. Until now there has been precious little in the shops worth buying.

Some specialists are wondering how much the situation will have changed by 1975. Though the plan calls for a 48 per cent rate of growth for light industry and 45 per cent for heavy industry, the latter has been predominant for so long that the relative output will hardly change.

If all the targets are fulfilled, heavy industry in 1975 will still account for 62.1 per cent of the national income, instead of 60 per cent, and light industry, from which consumer goods come, will represent 21.1 per cent instead of 20 per cent.

Withdrawal Refusal of Israel Backed

By MARCUS ELIASON
Associated Press Writer

TEL AVIV (AP) — Israel's ruling Labor party early today backed its leaders' refusal to withdraw from the occupied territories and demanded "substantial changes" in Israel's pre-1967 borders.

The final resolution at a three-day party convention was considered a slap at U.S. Secretary of State William P. Rogers, who has been urging the Israeli government to agree to only "insubstantial border adjustments."

The resolution, adopted by an overwhelming show of hands, said, "Substantial changes will have to be made in these former border lines, because past experience has proved that they cannot provide Israel with vital security."

Speaker after speaker affirmed Israel's refusal to withdraw to the prewar frontiers. Premier Golda Meir flatly rejected Egypt's latest proposals because she said they implied total retreat. Defense Minister Moshe Dayan said Israel would fight rather than go back to the old borders.

Even Dovish Foreign Minister Abba Eban devoted most of this speech to scorn for the U.S. thesis that international guarantees offer more security than new borders.

One party dove who demanded that the government take more seriously Egyptian expressions of readiness for peace was almost shouted down; another said he believed in at least partial retreat, but added: "I am sorry, Mr. Rogers, but your proposals are quite unacceptable."

At the last convention 18 months ago, the party almost split over whether to accept Dayan's territorial doctrine, which many felt was too tough.

This time it was written into the resolution with no opposition. This doctrine stipulates Israel will retain the Golan Heights of Syria, the Gaza Strip, East Jerusalem, and control of Sharm el Sheikh.

It also states no Arab army will cross the Jordan River westward to Israel.

Cites Value in Approval of Osteopaths

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Dr. George B. Bean, a Little Rock osteopath said Tuesday the osteopath bill approved last Friday by the legislature would give the profession the chance to provide rural areas of the state with well-trained general practitioners.

The bill admits osteopaths to the full practice of medicine and surgery in Arkansas for the first time. Forty-seven other states already extend the right to osteopaths.

Under a 1903 law, the practice of osteopathy in Arkansas was limited to manipulation of the musculoskeletal structure—treating bad necks, backs, knees and elbows. The law was amended in 1919 to slightly enlarge the scope of the practice.

Bean said the medical licensing of osteopaths would help improve medical care in rural areas because large numbers of osteopaths are general practicioners and many of them practice in less populous areas.

Bean says he expects a "very slow" influx of osteopaths into the state despite the approval of the measure, but that in time Arkansas would see the benefit of the legislation.

Daniel Thought of Bringing Charge Himself

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Capt. Aubrey M. Daniel III, prosecutor in Lt. William L. Calley Jr.,'s My Lai murder trial, once weighed with two other officers the possibility of bringing charges against Calley themselves if the government failed to do so.

This sense of devotion to military justice and concern over the possibility of political influence was apparently reflected in his letter Tuesday to President Nixon, criticizing White House intervention in the case.

The Calley prosecution was the high point of Daniel's four-year Army tour. He is due for release April 11 and has said he expects to return to private law practice.

A native of Monks Corner, S.C., he lists his home as Orange, Va. He and his wife, Shirley, have a 2-year-old daughter, blonde like her mother and father, and momentarily are expecting their second child.

Daniel graduated from the University of Virgina and was in the top 10 per cent of his class at the University of Richmond's school of law.

He had been in private practice less than a year when he was drafted into the Army. Obtaining a direct judge advocate general's commission April 12, 1967, he joined the Army's legal branch at Ft. Dix, N.J.

Later he was transferred to Ft. Benning, Ga., where he was a senior trial counsel when selected nearly two years ago to try Calley.

E. St. Louis Gets First Negro Mayor

EAST ST. LOUIS, Ill. (AP) — "God gave us the victory," said James Williams Sr. after being elected Tuesday as the first black mayor of East St. Louis.

"Free at last. Free at last," Williams' supporters chanted after hearing of his victory over another Negro, Virgil E. Calvert, a city commissioner and veteran political figure who ran first in the primary.

Williams, 49, a political novice, campaigned on a pledge he would not be a puppet for a political machine. He will replace Mayor Alvin Fields, who has served for 20 years.

The final, unofficial tabulation showed Williams with 10,792 votes and Calvert with 8,202.

East St. Louis, a city of some 67,000 people including nearly 50,000 Negroes, is just across the Mississippi River from St. Louis, Mo.

"We took a message to the people and they, with God's help, accepted it," Williams said. "People have been hoping for a change and they are going to get it. We have an opportunity to turn East St. Louis around."

Williams resigned from the Legal Aid Society to enter the nonpartisan primary and scored a major upset by defeating another veteran politician,

MIDDLE SOUTH UTILITIES SYSTEM

Despite Edict Objectors See No Trouble

By EDMOND LeBRETON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Robert F. Drinan, who is a priest and lawyer as well, says most young men troubled by the morality of the Vietnam war probably can qualify—despite last month's Supreme Court ruling—as conscientious objectors.

The court declared that objection to all war "in any form"—not merely one particular conflict—is the test for draft exemption.

But Drinan, a former law school dean, thinks many youths who are sure they oppose the Vietnam fighting, but are otherwise uncertain about war, need only ask themselves:

"Is there any reason to believe that any war involving the United States today will be essentially different morally from the Vietnam war?"

If the answer is no, the Massachusetts Democrat said, the youth should be able to say he opposes such wars generally.

"I think it is a legitimate construction of the conscientious objection statute," he said.

The prospective inductee still might have difficulty, Drinan acknowledged, if he were asked what his attitude would be if the United States were attacked.

Drinan said he has told young people of the approach he described, without urging them to use it: "I don't tell the kids to avail themselves of this. I tell them it is a legitimate interpretation if in fact their conscientious feeling is of this kind."

Drinan gave his views in commenting on a Supreme Court decision Monday involving James Francis McFadden of San Francisco.

McFadden, contending the Vietnam war violates his conscience as a Catholic, argued he should be draft-exempt. A U.S. district court sustained the contention, but the Supreme Court, citing earlier decisions against selective conscientious objection, set aside the lower court's action.

Drinan said, however, the moral issue of selective conscientious objection is not a specifically Catholic concern.

Drinan said ancient standards distinguishing between just and unjust wars have been adopted and developed by later Protestants as well as Catholic theologians.

He said in his opinion the Vietnam conflict violates at least two of the criteria:

"It is a genocidal war, one of people against people ...

"There is no proportionality—the destruction and harm it does is greater than any conceivable good that might result."

Variety Show Discussed

EDDIE WHITMAN

Under the direction of Eddie Whitman, Chairman of the Kiwanis Variety Show Committee, Tuesday's Kiwanis Club meeting was devoted in its entirety to discussion, planning, and committee reports concerning this year's show which will be presented at City Hall Auditorium, one night only, on Friday, April 16th at 8 p.m.

This will be the 28th consecutive Annual Kiwanis Show and promises to be one of the better shows of the long series. It will be an hour or two of good clean entertainment and fun, some of it "corny", but all of it clean.

Specialty numbers this year include Delaine Bonds Neece, soloist, Luke and Duke (Ernest Ridgdill and Joe McCulley), Paula Poindexter, folk singer, Lowell Harris, soloist as well as a member of the Barber Shop Quartet, Jim and Claudia Hart, singers, Suzanne Voltz, dancer, Larry Keel, western singer, Nancy Ross, pianist, as well as Guy Grigg, Harry Hathorne and Dean Murphy doing their thing.

It was reported at Tuesday's meeting that advertisements had been sold, the program has gone to the printer, and tickets are now being sold with all revenues to be used for local youth programs and the Golden Age Club.

Wants Local Teachers to Quit AEA

BLYTHEVILLE, Ark. (AP)—Joe Musick, president of the Blytheville District Education Association, said Monday he hoped local associations would withdraw from the Arkansas Education Association in an attempt to dramatize the teachers' dissatisfaction with the manner in which the AEA has represented them in the fight to get more money appropriated for education.

Musick said the BDEA will vote April 20 on whether the group will withdraw from the AEA.

"I don't feel like we've gained anything from AEA over the past year," Musick said. "They haven't supplied us with the leadership necessary and tell us only that we should get involved at the local level."

Musick said that since the participation on the local level was the best advice the AEA had to offer, that the dues paid to the AEA could be put to better use at the local level.

Prosecutor of Calley Lashes Nixon

WASHINGTON (AP) — Capt. Aubrey M. Daniel III, the Army lawyer who prosecuted Lt. William L. Calley Jr., has accused President Nixon of damaging military justice and enhancing the stature of a convicted murderer "as a national hero" by intervening in the case.

In a letter to Nixon dated April 3—the day the President announced he would personally review the final military judgment of Calley's responsibility at My Lai—Daniel said:

"You have subjected a judicial system of this country to the criticism that it is subject to political influence, when it is a fundamental precept of our judicial system that the legal processes of this country must be kept free from any outside influences."

Calley was convicted March 30 for the premeditated murder of 22 South Vietnamese civilians in what Nixon himself once referred to as an apparent massacre at My Lai village.

Two days later, Calley was sentenced, by the same six-man Army jury, to life imprisonment. Nixon ordered Calley released from the stockade at Ft. Benning, Ga., and held there in the military equivalen of house arrest.

"In view of your previous statement concerning this matter, I have been particularly shocked and dismayed at your decision to intervene in these proceedings in the midst of the public clamor," wrote the 29-year-old Daniel. "Your decision can only have been prompted by the response of a vocal segment of our population, who while no doubt acting in good faith, cannot be aware of the evidence which resulted in Lt. Calley's conviction.

White House press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler declined comment on the letter. But he referred newsmen to statements made Saturday by presidential assistant John Ehrlichman who announced Nixon would conduct the final review of Calley's sentence.

Asked whether Nixon's intervention might be interference in the judicial process, Ehrlichman replied:

"He is trying to be very scrupulous not to interfere in that process. He is very much aware of the necessity to in no way comment on the merits of the case or what he thinks the penalty should be, if any, or in any other way getgint into the substance of the case "

Daniel, who was drafted in 1967 after a year's law practice and given an officer's commission, declined to discuss his letter with newsmen. He said at Ft. Benning he did not write it for publicity.

He sent carbon copies of the letter to Sens. Harold E. Hughes, D-Iowa, George McGovern, D-S.D., and Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine, all considered potential presidential candidates; to Democrats Harry F. Byrd Jr. and William B. Spong Jr. of Virginia, Daniel's home state; and to Sen. Robert Taft Jr. of Ohio.

My Lai Data Available to Henderson

By ROBIN FRAMES
Associated Press Writer

FT. MEADE, Md. (AP) — Lawyers defending Col. Oran K. Henderson against charges of covering up the My Lai massacre have gained access to a mass of government information on the case and have taken steps they feel may lead to dropping of two charges against him.

After two days of hearings, the pretrial proceedings were adjourned Tuesday until April 15.

Henderson, 50, is a veteran of three wars. He commanded the 11th Infantry Brigade in which Lt. William L. Calley Jr. was serving when he led a platoon through My Lai on March 16, 1968.

Calley was convicted of murdering 22 civilians and sentenced to life in prison.

Henderson is charged with dereliction of duty, failure to obey a lawful regulation, false swearing and making a false official statement.

The first two counts stem from the fact that he allegedly failed to conduct a proper investigation into the report of civilian deaths at My Lai. The other counts came out of an investigation into the incident by a commission headed by Lt. Gen. William R. Peers.

Lt. Col. Frank J. Dorsey, chief military defense counsel, asserted that Henderson's testimony before the Peers commission might not be admissible as evidence because the colonel "was not adequately warned" at the outset that he was a suspect.

If that testimony is suppressed, it could lead to the dismissal of the counts arising from the Peers inquiry, defense lawyers said.

Dorsey said he was told personally by Peers after the inquiry that Henderson had been considered a "prime suspect" at the time the inquiry began.

Wants New Accounting System

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Gov. Dale Bumpers said Tuesday he hoped the state would receive federal funds so that a new system of accounting for state agencies could begin.

The governor said the new system would be similar to the double entry system that the Parks, Recreation and Publicity Commission recently began using.

Bumpers said that the accounting system was one of the items discussed during a staff meeting Tuesday on the problems of implementing the governmental reorganization plan.

Congressmen to Sue Nixon Over the War

By DON McLEOD
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Three congressmen say they will sue President Nixon charging he has denied them their constitutional right to declare war. They seek to end the U.S. role in Vietnam within 60 days unless Congress acts.

Reps. Parren J. Mitchell, D-Md., Michael Harrington, D-Mass., and Benjamin Rosenthal, D-N.Y., said their suit will be filed in U.S. District Court here.

The action is another attempt at getting the Supreme Court to rule on the legality of the war in Indochina, something it repeatedly has refused to do. The congressmen's suit appears the most direct approach tried so far.

"Article 1, Section 8, Clause II of the United States Constitution states in clear and unequivocal language that Congress shall have the power to declare war," the congressmen said. "Congress has not exercised that power.

"It has passed no legislation or joint resolution declaring war in Indochina, now has it explicitly, intentionally, and discretely authorized the war."

By prosecuting the war without such a declaration, the suit claims, the President and other executive branch officials "unlawfully impair and defeat plaintiffs' constitutional right as members of the Congress of the United States, to decide whether the United States should fight a war."

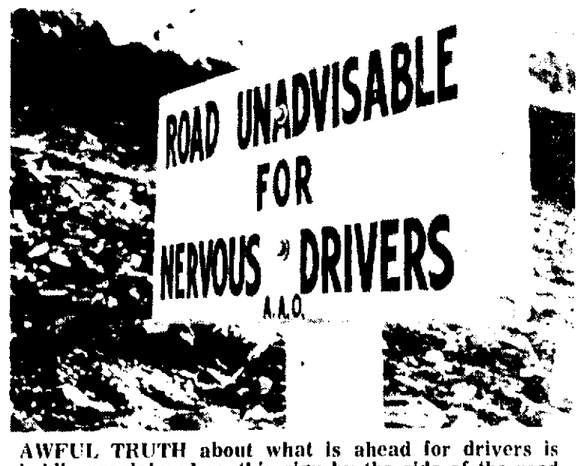

Rosenthal, Mitchell and Harrington want the court to order the President to stop fighting the war unless within 60 days Congress authorizes it in the proper constitutional manner.

Secondly, they ask a judgment that the executive branch is acting in violation of the Constitution.

Among the lawyers listed as preparing the suit are Lawrence Velvel of the University of Kansas law school, Anthony A. D'Amato of Northwestern and Robert J. Vollen of Chicago.

Life Prison Bill Vetoed by Governor

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Gov. Dale Bumpers vetoed a bill Tuesday that would have changed the definition of life imprisonment from life to 99 years.

The effect of the bill, by Rep. Wayne Courtney of Forrest City, would have been to increase from 16½ to 33 the minimum number of years an inmate under a life sentence would have had to serve before becoming eligible for parole.

Bumpers also vetoed a bill that would have given persons eligible for eye examinations at public expense the choice of seeking an optometrist or an ophthamalogist.

Under the current law, ophthamologists must make the examination.

WATCHWORD FOR BOATING SAFETY — #1

A recent Coast Guard study shows that the three main causes for boating accidents are: (1) Too many people in the boat. (2) Failure to keep a sharp lookout. (3) Too much speed at the wrong time or place. In this study, most fatal accidents resulted from failure to wear life jackets. Would common sense and courtesy have prevented them? Of course! Still accidents go on needlessly, but the point is, it does not have to be you! Prepare yourself by learning what you should know about first aid, artificial respiration, the rules of the road and other phases of seamanship.

It's also good common sense to finance your new car as carefully as you select it—with a First National auto loan! Our loans are personally planned in your interest. You can buy your insurance where you please and you establish bank credit.

Damage From Food Additives Possibility

WASHINGTON (AP) — Several scientists say the nation's population may have been exposed by chemical additives to food to potentially serious genetic damage that could affect 40 generations.

The scientists, appearing before a Senate Government Operations subcommittee Tuesday, presented a list of 100 common chemicals added to food and used in drugs, pesticides and as industrial chemicals.

All have had some adverse results in preliminary research, said Dr. Lawrence Fishbein of the National Institute of Environmental Health Sciences. He said the results ranged from the causing of cancer to the triggering of harmful mutations.

Fishbein said sodium nitrite, a common preservative of meat, cheese and fish, can react chemically in the stomach to form cancer-causing compounds.

A widely-used insecticide, DDVP, can cause mutations and aberations of the body's basic reproductive structures—the chromosomes, he said.

The subcommittee said it will demand immediate explanations of two questions:

—Why the Food and Drug Administration has not acted on year-old recommendations that chemical food additives be tested for their effect on human health.

—And why the Agriculture Department has not protected American consumers from a chemical added to cattle feed which has been shown to produce cancer in laboratory animals.

Guevara Is Idolized in Ceylon

NEW DELHI (AP) — Che Guevara never went to Ceylon, but he is idolized by thousands of unemployed youths in the tropical island off the southern tip of India.

A young Ceylonese named Rohana Wijeweera is considered the leader of the militant "Che Guevara" movement that Prime Minister Sirimavo Bandaranaike on Tuesday accused of trying to take over the country. Mrs. Bandaranaike said police and troops had repulsed 25 attacks on police stations, security patrols and government buildings and crushed the attempt.

Wijeweera was a student at the Patrice Lumumba University in Moscow in the 1960s. He was expelled for Maoist activities, considered too radical for the Soviet Communists.

The previous conservative government of Ceylon arrested him and Mrs. Bandaranaike's regime put him back in jail.

His group of militant Marxists is named the People's Liberation Front, but it is known generally as the Che Guevarists. It is reported to have a membership of 20,000, exactly double the strength of the island's police force, which had to call on the armed forces for help against the extremists.

The Che Guevarists derived most of their membership from the educated young people who make up a large percentage of the 750,000 unemployed.

They come from well-to-do families, but say they are frustrated by the lack of economic opportunity. They are disenchanted with Mrs. Bandaranaike's leftist government and accuse some of the Cabinet ministers of not living austerely enough. The Che Guevarists try to set an examplş; the women sell their jewelry, the men sell their watches to raise funds.

Ceylon swung sharply to the left in the general elections last May, giving Mrs. Bandaranaike's coalition with the Communists a two-thirds majority in Parliament. But the Communist countries did not come forward with anticipated aid, and Mrs. Bandaranaike has had to move slowly in her policy of social revolution for Ceylon so as not to make a bad economic situation worse.

Pentagon Told to Tighten Control of CID

By ROBERT A. DOBKIN
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird has ordered the Army's Criminal Investigation Division brought under tighter Pentagon control in the wake of a congressional probe of corruption in military PXs and servicemen's clubs.

Laird, in an unpublicized memo March 17, directed Secretary of the Army Stanley R. Resor "to develop a CID agency which has vertical control of all CIDs worldwide" and to be similar in structure to the Air Force's Office of Special Investigations.

"One top cop or chief detective would be in charge of CID investigations worldwide and assure that people here would be aware of what's going on in the field," an Army spokesman said.

CID detachments now take orders from local commanders. Air Force criminal investigators are directed by OSI headquarters in Washington.

The Senate Permanent Investigations subcommittee's hearings into alleged kickbacks and bribes in operation of the PXs and servicemen's clubs system brought charges the CID was unable to coordinate investigations between major commands. Sen. Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn., heads the panel.

Some senators said evidence suggested a series of high-level coverups in local commands to protect senior officers and high-ranking enlisted men. Because of the CID's structure, the senators said, local commanders were able to quash investigation or suppress findings.

Reacting to another area of Senate criticism, Laird ordered the Air Force to develop a worldwide debarment procedure to prohibit individuals and firms accused of illegal activities from doing further business with any military branch.

Senate testimony indicated some businessmen, although supposedly barred, were able by changing their names and corporate structure to remain active in selling supplies, such as slot machines, to the military.

In one case, William J. Crim, a U.S. businessman living in Hong Kong, was able to operate for more than five years a lucrative business with the U.S. military in Vietnam although he had been barred in Korea several years earlier.

Describes Earthquake

EDITOR'S NOTE: Mrs. Eva Lancaster, formerly of Arkadelphia, gives an account of the recent California Earthquake. Mrs. Lancaster is the sister of Mrs. J.B. Rowe of 602, Mockingbird Lane, Hope.

Dear folks and friends of Arkansas,

I'll tell a quake experience if I can get my wits together. In my opinion, it was terrible, but it could have been worse. If it had been, then I wouldn't have been here writing this—that is for sure.

I'm still shaky as you can plainly see.

To begin this story, my son-in-law was the only one up. He was in the bathroom shaving. He said all at once the floor was raising up and down. He awakened his wife. Their son, Gregg, was awakened by the shaking, grabbed his little seven year old sister, and came up the hall yelling "Granny." It woke me up, but it made me so giddy-headed and nauseated, I couldn't get up. My bed was shaking so bad.

When I first noticed the shaking I thought it was our little silky house dog on my bed. All at once the tall mirror on my dresser began slapping the wall to the tune, "Get up and get out." I raised up and put my feet on the floor and they danced a jig. My legs felt like they were wired to my body with the finest of wire. More or less, I felt like I was a puppet. The house shook, rattled, and twisted. Not one thing fell in either room. Some homes and businesses were damaged in Santa Monica. No need going in detail about it as you have seen and heard about it.

My son-in-law told us all to get dressed. We are going out for the day. He didn't feel like working after the quake. We did cook breakfast, but ate very little. I'm sure there weren't too many people who even cooked the noon meal.

My daughter, Dorinda, was afraid of tidal waves, which if they did follow, would have made us a feast for the sharks. We live about thirteen blocks from the ocean.

We headed for higher ground. It only lasted a few seconds but seemed like hours. The tremors were almost constant all that day and night. We all sat up late, so did all of our neighbors. Each tremor seemed stronger than the one before. Everyone would look at each other — expecting the worse any time.

Our little dog would run and bark each time we felt a tremor. The poor little thing was so excited. She became frantic when the house shook and twisted. She sensed something was bad wrong.

We slept fully dressed except for shoes which we kept right by the bed.

We all would be running over each other in the dark. If another one came like it, what would I do. If things began to turn and roll I hope I'm not here for the next one. Too much of an excitement for me. I don't feel like I could run on those wired feeling legs. Then, on second thought, I might be in the lead. I'm sure I would head for the front lawn. We are on a corner lot. I would feel much safer outside than inside. There are no electric lines on our side of the street.

Just to tell the facts about the whole situation—one doesn't know what he or she would do until it happens.

Three things happened on February 9 that will go down in history: earthquake, landing of the astronauts on the moon, and the eclipse.

Other parts of the United States have had bad storms. People can run to cellars if they have one. A cellar would be a nice trap for quakes.

The sad part is you couldn't call anyone, more than a neighbor. I tried calling my daughter, Jean, in Montana and my son in Little Rock. I knew they were worried sick about us. In the meantime my daughter was trying to get in touch with us until 11 o'clock that night. I finally got a call through to her the next day. I did get a call through to my brother, Newt, by saying this is a case of emergency.

After the quake everything was quiet — the birds were not singing and not a leaf on a tree was moving.

A neighbor of ours was up drinking coffee when the earthquake came. He said he got crazy in the head as the quake shook their house. His wife tried to get up and said the bed was whirling so she would fall backwards as she tried to get up. Her baby was in his bed in the same room and he would pull up and fall backwards. Both beds were moving all around the room. The four small boys in the back room were holding on to their beds tight. Her mother, in her room, with door closed, holding on to headboard for dear life and calling for some one to help her. Her bed jammed against the door.

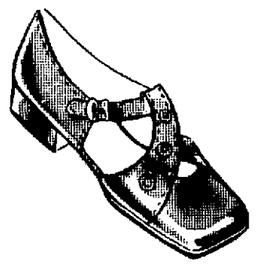

Well good readers I would write you a book about this if time permitted. It would be more fun to tell in person and act it out. I'll be seeing you folks soon.

Mrs. Eva Lancaster

Governor Outlined His Major Issues

By ROBERT SHAW
Associated Press Writer

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — In his inaugural address Jan. 12, Gov. Dale Bumpers outlined eight areas in which he planned to mount an attack through the legislature to help solve the problem as he saw them.

Although there are other less popular but equally troublesome causes which also would receive his consideration, he said, the eight would be the "major concerns" of the new administration.

"I consider the solution to all of these problems both progressive and forward looking necessities," he told about 2,000 persons who gathered on a chilly night to hear the inaugural speech delivered from the steps of the Capitol.

The 68th General Assembly, which went into a two-week recess Friday after an 82-day session, responded by giving him most of what he wanted.

Bumpers' scorecard on the "major concerns" is:

Education — Falling short by about $400 a year of fulfilling his pledge to raise teacher salaries to the level of surrounding states, the Arkansas Education Association says, Bumpers nevertheless won approval of an average $900 increase in teacher pay over the biennium. The public schools and the state - supported colleges and universities shared most heavily in new revenues produced by the Bumpers tax program, with the institutions of higher learning also getting their first real building program in four years.

Governmental reorganization — The legislature enacted the governor's plan to consolidate more than 60 state agencies into 13 principal departments and authorized what some legislators considered "super salaries" for the directors of the "super departments." But Bumpers' bill to establish a comprehensive civil service for state employes, which the governor considered a companion to reorganization, was killed in the Senate after passing the House.

Medical Services — Approved was an administration bill establishing a scholarship program to encourage medical students to practice in rural areas after graduation. Included in the budget of the University of Arkansas Medical Center was money to expand the center's family practice division, a Bumpers goal. The legislature passed a bill to admit osteopaths to the full practice of medicine and surgery in Arkansas.

Highways — Two administration bills to rewrite the state turnpike authority law to make it easier to build toll roads passed the Senate, but both were killed in House committees. The governor vetoed a nonadministration bill authorizing a special election on a $300 million highway construction bond issue.

Economic development— The assembly voted to provide the money to start an ambitious program asked by Bumpers for construction and improvement of state parks in order to attract more tourist dollars to the state.

Prison reform — The legislature approved an administration package that included a work-release program for inmates, authorization for creation of youthful offenders' treatment facilities such as forestry camps and a liberalization of meritorious good time inmates may earn to reduce their sentences. In addition, the assembly passed a $1.2 million prison construction program, including a minimum security unit and a new women's reformatory.

Campaign expenditures —The Senate killed a Bumpers bill that would have limited campaign spending. Approved was a bill requiring public disclosure of expenses in all campaigns.

Ecology — The budget of the Pollution Control Commission was increased. The legislature granted more control over sewage and solid waste treatment facilities. Strip mining regulations were broadened. The state Planning Commission was given authority to designate and preserve areas of unusual natural significance. The legislature ratified the Interstate Environmental Compact. Defeated, however, was a measure to create a scenic rivers system consisting of five rivers.

Bumpers gave no indication in his inaugural speech of a number of other bills that he offered the legislature and that were approved, although he had mentioned them previously. Among them were repeal of the state's "fair trade" liquor law, the consumer protection legislation and a measure giving greater "home rule" powers to cities.

He hinted that he would ask for new taxes, but did not unveil his revenue program until several weeks later.

The governor wound up with a $27 million program that consisted of an increase in the income tax rates, with a top tax bracket of 7 per cent on income over $25,000 instead of the 5 per cent that had existed, a phase-out of use-tax exemptions granted quasipublic corporations, a five-cent per package increase in the cigarette tax, extension of the 3 per cent state sales tax to repair services and a reduction in the real estate transfer tax from $3 per $1,000 of value to $1.10 per $1,000.

SEX DISCRIMINATION is the target of Xandra Kayden, new head of the Women's Action Program of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. The program being established may involve requiring private contractors with HEW to agree to contract clauses barring discriminatory practices.

A Nongraded School System Is Proposed

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — A Pennsylvania State University researcher says school systems should abolish grades 1 through 12 and substitute an individual advancement program for each child.

Dr. Jacob J. Kaufman, director of Penn State's Institute for Research on Human Resources, said the study indicates both teachers and pupils benefit from such a system.

Teachers in the nongraded school exhibit more creativity and willingly spent more of their own time to help the children learn than teachers in a regular school studied for comparison, he said.

He said both schools are in Pennsylvania but did not identify them.

Kaufman said the conclusions of the study were opinions of researchers who sat in the classrooms and were not based on traditional testing of students.

"The continuous progress nongraded program operates in the framework of success," Kaufman said. "Since each youngster opeates at his own rate, he cannot fail. There is no such thing as failure. Each child is evaluated according to his own potential."

To advance, Kaufman said, a pupil has to meet certain standards, but it is based on his ability in that subject and not his age.

"Children at the same age are not necessarily at the same level of development," Kaufman said. "A child can be at the first level in math and the second level in science."

Kaufman said the nongraded system would abolish traditional testing and report cards. Pupils could be evaulated through teacher conferences with parents, or teachers could write comments about a child's progress.

The report said that in a graded system, teachers lacked willingness to exert great effort to improve the school program.

"At the control graded school they seldom talked about professional matters in the lunchroom or at other free times, had infrequent conferences with parents, and usually left immediately after the end of the school day," it said.

"In contrast, in the continuous progress program, teachers could be found in the building for at least a half or full hour after school every day planning for programs or conferring with parents."

Humphrey Still Eyes Nomination

WASHINGTON (AP) — Hubert H. Humphrey, inching closer to Democratic presidential candidacy, says a crowded field may prove next year's primaries indecisive—a situation likely to benefit the Minnesota senator.

Humphrey, narrowly defeated by President Nixon in the 1968 race, also says he will decide near the end of the year to enter the primary competition.

"I'm not going to say what will happen until I know what I'm going to do," Humphrey said. "I'll decide about the end of this year. I would have to take a look then at what, if any, primaries I would enter."

Humphrey bypassed the primaries in winning, as vice president, the Democratic presidential nomination in 1968. He said it is possible, but only "an outside possibility," that a Democrat who does not enter presidential primaries could emerge with the 1972 nomination.

He said he is in no hurry to make a decision about candidacy. Even after deciding, Humphrey said, he may not declare his intentions for a while.

Humphrey said he will see how he is received around the country, analyze the polls, and decide a political course at the turn of the year.

"This 1972 business got started too soon from the viewpoint of the Democrats anyhow," he said.

The polls now show Humphrey moving up among the prospects for 1972 nomination. The list still is headed in most samples by Sen. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine.

Humphrey said he doesn't know what makes the polls move.

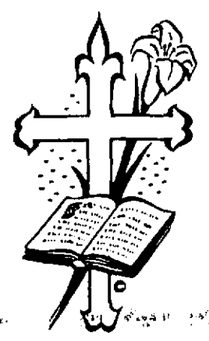

"I haven't been doing much," he said. He said he has declined invitations to appear at political meetings with other prospective candidates.

"I don't want to have it appear that I'm posturing as a candidate," Humphrey said.

But he has, increasingly, been on his feet in the Senate, often challenging the administration of the President who defeated him.

He also remains chairman of the Democratic Policy Council, an issue-drafting panel which has called for withdrawal of all American troops from South Vietnam by the end of this year.

He has been making speeches, but has so far avoided the kind of cross-country sampling and speaking missions undertaken by Muskie and other Democratic possibilities; Sen. Harold Hughes of Iowa, Sen. Birch Bayh of Indiana and Sen. George McGovern of South Dakota.

Television and Radio

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — "The American Revolution," CBS's two-a-year series which will end during the nation's bicentennial year of 1976, had its premiere Tuesday night. It was a no-script interview between Eric Sevareid as a 1971 journalist and Lord Frederick North, King George III's prime minister during the difficulty with the American colonies, played by Peter Ustinov.

The idea is to present circumstances surrounding the birth of the nation in a fashion between the techniques of the old "You Are There" shows and "The Dick Cavett Show."

Sad to relate, the mixture of 18th century subject and 20th century interviewer just didn't work, either as a device to enliven history or as entertainment.

Ustinov and Sevareid had done a lot of boning up on their subject. During a prologue when Ustinov was shown getting shaved and made up in his 1770 costume, he discussed how he proposed to play the king's prime minister, even to the tone of voice he would use.

When he sat down for the interview, Ustinov continued to be, in the eye of the viewer, an actor playing a part and indulding himself by fencing—often wittily—with his questioner instead of a man explaining why he had acted against the Colonies.

The program was taped at Wroxton Abbey, Lord North's home, but it might as well have been made in a New York or Hollywood studio. The whole thing added up to a television stunt, and a pretty boring one at that.

NBC's "First Tuesday" was devoted to an assortment of features on contemporary living. Perhaps the most appealing was a report on the Kienast quintuplets after their first birthday. They are cute healthy babies but their parents are not rich. It seems there are no takers for commercials using the quints since big families are out of style, according to Mrs. Kienast.

There was a long and sometimes grisly segment about a British fox hunt—it seemed that the profox side had all the advantages in the narration.

CBS also showed a half-hour report on changes along the ecological front since Earth Day a year ago. Narrator Walter Cronkite summarized that the most important result has been public concern about pollution, but that quality is worse.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

Highway littering is an expensive and unsightly problem which can be solved only by individual efforts of restraint. The World Almanac notes that officials in Illinois have computed it costs the state 63 cents to pick up, collect and dispose of an empty beer can littering a highway.

DR. LAWRENCE E. LAMB

Honey, Vinegar No Aid to Circulation

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb—Perhaps this may sound silly to you, but is it true that honey and vinegar aid in the circulation of the blood?

Dear Reader—No, not at all. Honey, like sugar, contains lots of calories in each teaspoonful. Some people get results from almost anything if they have enough faith in the treatment.

Medical research has to be done with great care to avoid mistaken conclusions, such as ideas like the use of honey and vinegar, or watermelon seeds, in the treatment of high blood pressure.

Faith and the human body are both complicated and fascinating.

Dear Dr. Lamb — I read your articles on health regularly. I would like to know if you agree that garlic is helpful in dilating the blood vessels and thus reducing blood pressure? Do you think that garlic is safer to use than some types of medicine used in treating high blood pressure which may be a relaxant or inhibits nerve impulses that would cause blood vessel constriction? If one eliminates the obvious fatteners, such as sweets, butter and animal fats, and cuts down drastically on carbohydrates, do you think it is possible to control this dangerous condition without taking a single drug and risking grave side effects?

Dear Reader—There is no evidence that garlic is useful in treating high blood pressure. True, some medicines used in treating high blood pressure have undesirable side effects. So do most medicines, even those of greatest value, like our antibiotics.

High blood pressure can be caused by a number of different factors, including kidney disease. A lot of people with mild high blood pressure can control their problem with a good diet as you have suggested.

I have seen many a person develop normal blood pressure after a significant loss of excess fat. Most doctors recommend weight reduction for persons with high blood pressure. The problem is getting the patient to reduce.

Some people have high blood pressure from nervous tension or when they are apprehensive about having an examination. Faith in their medicine, even garlic, and sometimes tranquilizers enables these people to have normal blood pressure during examinations. Many of these people do not have high blood pressure except during examinations anyway and would do as well with no medicine and some reassurance. Because the problem is complex, only your doctor can tell you if you really need medicine or a change in habits.

Opening lead—♠ 4

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Today's hand is taken from the section of "Win at Bridge with JACOBY MODERN" that deals with the play of the cards.

West opens the four of spades and the first rule of play the hand illustrates is the old one of second hand low. The seven should be played from dummy. This play insures two spade tricks for declarer regardless of how the spade suit is divided.

After winning the first trick South is looking at three heart tricks and two diamond tricks but they aren't going to get away from him. Instead, South should work on the suit in which he can develop tricks. That is clubs and he simply plays clubs until East takes his ace. He will wind up making at least 10 tricks after this simple start.

This hand is simple indeed. Now, change South's spade holding to ace-three-two. With this holding he should forget about second hand low and play dummy's queen of spades since that is the only way to get some good out of that card under these circumstances.

East will cover with the king and now South must follow another basic principle of play to make the contract. He must hold back his ace of spades until the third lead. Then he goes about the business of knocking out the ace of clubs and when East gets in he won't have a spade to lead to his partner.
